12. "The poem 'La Belle Dame Sans Merci' is a ballad written by 'John Keats' in 1819. The one of English classic poem.

The poem begins with poet the speaker question to the knight what is bothering him. He asks the knight why he is sad & wondering alone near the lake, where no green grass is left, & no bird is singing. It suggests spring where there is no beauty surrounding.

In the second stanza the speaker repeats the same question to the knight why he is tired & miserable in appearance, He looks pale, alone, haggard (exhausted), woe-begone (sorrowful). Nature too seems to be stripped of all joy. He refers to winter season by telling squired is done by collecting with its grain, & harvest is also done. It is the time of loneliness, coldness & grief. In this situation a knight is alone.

Now the speaker informs the knight that he look sick, his face as pale as a lily, He looks pale as moist with sweat as he had a fever.

Now the knight answers the concern raised by speaker. The knight at arms reveals that he met a lady in meadows. She has long hair, light step & passionate eyes, she seems to be a fairy's child. At a first sight knight fell love on her, as a token of love he gifts garland of a flower to adorn her head & a bracelet & fragrant zone. She also reciprocates the love on him.

Afterward he takes her along with on his horse & whole day they spend time with each other. The lady sang a song to him.

Then the lady offers a tasty food to eat including sweet roots, honey of wild bees & sweet gum of manna ash. Although he don't know her language she said 'I love you truly' to him.

Then the lady takes him along with her Elfen goat there she weeps loudly but the knight never reveals the reason behind it perhaps it indicates the way of expressing love.

Then he kisses her on her eyes & shuts them that she may sleep with him. This shows the dept of their relationship.

The lady lulls the knight to sleep. The knight dreams that he see in his dream that he saw kings, wories & princes they cry out & said "La Belle Dame sans mercy" dont belive that lady because she is without mercy.

Now he describe the dead man in his dream. Their strived lips warning him to be aware of the lady because she is without mercy, but it is too late the knight because he already trapped by the lady after some time he opens his eyes & see himself alone near the hill side.

In concluding he says because of that lady he was wondering alone near the lake where no bird is singing does because the lady she was without melody.
