10) "The Luncheon"

This lesson is written by the Poet "W. Somerset Maugham". He is the British Novelist, playwright & a short-story writer. He regarded "in the very very top most of the second rank" for his work. His most of the character was related to easy & humane & that evoke day-to-day life feelings & emotions. Some of his famous short-story were "of human bondage (1915)", "Moon & Sixpence (1919)", "The Lake & the Lake (1930)". His poetry can be easily understood to everyone.

The lesson describe about "How the lady or woman was without thinking for the author". She says "I never eat anything for the luncheon", "never eat more than one thing", But she was ordering one - after - the other expensive dishes. As she orders the author gets more panic of what the Bill would come. But one day he say I took my revenge as she was of twenty - one stone (134 kg) of weight.

The author ~~meat~~ met that lady before 20 years. The author or poet was living in Paris. had a tiny apartment in the Latin Quarter. He ~~was~~ ^{have} enough income to be live. The lady read the poet's book & wrote a letter. She also wrote another letter that she is passing through the Paris & she want to meet him But only at the limited time that's on Thursday. So she told to give a luncheon of Thursday at Foyot's restaurant at half - Past twelve (12:30 pm). she was no so young as the poet expected. She was of 40 age & she was very talkative. & she was a ~~atenti~~ attentive listener.

She says, "I never eat much for the luncheon", "only one thing for luncheon". I like to eat only a salmon fish.

& she order the start up as caviar.

By that poet's heart ~~stuck~~ sank little.

Because, they were very expensive dishes.

& for himself he order the very cheapest dish is mutton chop. By that she said, to poet that you will overload your stomach by eating chops. You better follow my example. I never overload by my stomach. Next the question comes of drinking.

No, no, I never drink anything, But except White Wine. It is very light & good for digestion, she said. & she says, my doctor suggested to drink only champagne. I will drink only it.

She asks to poet "what you are going to drink?" he replied water!

Next the salmon & caviar arrives & she ate it. & she gently talks about the poet's music, art & literature. As his Mutton chop she said, I think you are having a habit of eating heavy things for the luncheon. I'm sure it's a mistake. You better follow my example. I never eat more than one thing for the luncheon, except these gaint asparagus. I can't leave the Paris without having it. Poet's heart sank's because he saw those in the shops & know that they are horribly expensive. He can't afford it, But he still ordered it. & waiting for the asparagus to be cooked.

But the Poet was wondering what the Bill would come. Now his question was not the remaining money after the paying to bill. But whether I can pay full money or not. If not I will ask to the guest. or I will put my hand into my pocket & start dramatic cry that my money is stolen or & will leave my watch by saying & I will pay you later & get it back. after that the asparagus arrived & she ate it.

She also ordered the toffee & an ice-cream & for himself the coffee. & By talking the head waiter keep the Basket full of Peaches. The Poet knows that they ^{are} very costly & in the absence of mind she eats these peaches.

Finally the bill comes. He was having 80 francs & he left with 3 francs for the tips. After coming out of the restaurant the whole case left in front of Poet. She say I never eat any thing for luncheon only one thing. You follow my example, He replied, I will do better than you. I will not eat anything tonight. She says you are quiet humorist & goes in the car.

Here she was not thinking about the author's situation. She just go on ordering expensive dishes one - after - the other. She was ~~we~~ very selfish. Not knowing others feelings. She not bothered about it.

"La Belle Dame Sans Merci"

This poem is written by the poet "John Keats". He is born on 1795 & died on 1821. born in middle class family in near fields London. He has very short life span of 26 years. He was the youngest poet among the younger Romantic's Poets. He is an imaginary poet. His career path changed by the publication of his 1st book called "on Solitude" in march "1816".

The Poem describes about the lady who is ~~but~~ beautiful without mercy. How the soldier loves her & how he get to know about her & after that how the life ~~was~~ of soldier was there. Here the poet asks to the soldier about his aloness, paleyness, & his situation.

The poet asks to the soldier that oh what is the trouble to you, why you are alone, so sad & wondering here?
what is the trouble? why you look so tired, discomfort & so tension & sad.
even the squirrels have stock the food
for his next season & the harvest also done.
your face is dull like a lily flower.
so tension & sweating like fever on forehead.
what's the trouble soldier.

So the soldier replied, "I meet a lady in the grass land, who is very beautiful & has a fairy child. Her hairs were long, feet were light & her eyes were wild."
He made a garland for her head, bracelet too & the fragrant zone or a belt full of flowers fragrance. She accepted & looked like as she loves him. He sits her on his horse & all day he watched her. & she bend slightly & can sing a fairy song.
She get him some sweet root, & honey wild & manna dew. He tells, after that she said something in different language but I am sure she said
"I Love the love"

After that she took him to his elfin grove (cave) & cried & she put close her wild eyes & kisses down. & she lulled me asleep & he had a dream. That was very horrible. He had never dreamed before.

There were many kings, princess, many warriors & soldiers & all were death faces. They all cried one thing "La Belle Dame Sans Merci", "Three Halls in Thrall" - don't believe her. She is danger. She caught you. He saw their lips were dried & wounded & they were warning to him. Suddenly he woke up & see he was on cold hill side.

This is the reason why I left alone, sadly & wondering here. even the sedge from the lake are dried & no birds sing I am alone here.

By this the Beauty is very dangerous. she was beautiful but without the mercy.
