Ans 9. Rasipuram Krishnaswami Narayan (1906-2001) was an Indian poet who wrote in the name R.K. Narayan. He was the first Indian poet to write in English. He began his writing career with Swami and Friends in 1935. He has written many more writings. He was nominated as a honorable member of Lok Sabha. He was also nominated by the American University of Literature, Arts and Letter. He even won numerous awards including, Sahitya Akademi award and Padmabhushan award.

The lesson portrays an unnamed astrologer who predicts people future, when he himself don't know about his life, to earn money as a job. One day he come across a man he thought he had stabbed and left for dead. He had thought that person had already died.

One afternoon the astrologer sat at his everyday place at the busy ~~path~~ narrow path of the town hall and spreadout his equipments which consists of a dozen cowrie shells, a square piece of cloth with a ~~mystery~~ mystic chart on it, a notebook and a bundle of palmyra writing. He wore a saffron turban which never fails to impress people. And he covered his forehead with ash and vermilion. And his eyes held a mysterious gleam that his customers thought was a prophetic light, and came to him. They were attracted to him as bees with flowers. He charged three pies per question. He didn't have his own light like a few other vendors. He used to use the light of the other shops. Near him was a groundnut seller who used to name his nuts with new names everyday like, "Bombay icecream, Delhi almond, Raja's delicacy" etc etc.

One day as it was late evening the groundnut seller turned off his light which was an indication for the astrologer to pack and go ^{home}. While he was packing his stuff he had a little green light ~~to~~ falling near him from somewhere near him. But it got blocked when the astrologer looked up it was blocked by a person. The astrologer told the stranger to take a seat and talk to him as he looked tired. The stranger grunted something and fist his hand in his nose and said "you call yourself an astrologer?". The astrologer felt challenged and took his hand in the green light and started saying what he says to all his clients but the stranger stopped him in midway and said to say something meaning if he is not bluffing out. The astrologer asked him to pay three pies as his charge, so the stranger flung an anna and took out his cheeroot and lit it up. The astrologer got shocked seeing the face of the person, and started packing his things giving the anna back to the stranger its late for him and he needs to go home. But the stranger didn't move instead he told the astrologer he was just passing and the astrologer had called him now he have to tell him about his future or else he have to pay back with interest.

After thinking for a while the astrologer asked him to give him 5 rupees if his predictions got right. But the stranger refused and they agreed on 8 annas. But than they again argued a little and it was declared the stranger will pay 1 rupee.

The astrologer than started saying the stranger was stabbed on his chest and left to die. The stranger felt astonished and showed his chest showing a scar on his chest which had happened due to a knife which happed through his chest. The astrologer than continued saying after getting stabbed he was pushed into a well to die. The stranger than said it was true but some passerby had helped him and he was not dead. The stranger asked where he could find that man but the astrologer replied in the next world because the man had died four months ago. The stranger felt sad and said he wanted to take his revenge, so the astrologer said the man had died by getting crushed under a lorry. The stranger felt happy. But then the astrologer called out the stranger name, Guru Nayak, which shocked the stranger, he asked how he knows his name, he said he knows everything and warned him to go back to his village and never travel south again as he sees another big problem in his life. Then the stranger paid and left.

By the time the astrologer started going home it was late ~~to~~ night and all the lights had turned off leaving it in darkness. The astrologer reached home to see his wife waiting for him by the door. He gave ~~him~~^{her} all the coins saying to count them as one person gave them all. His wife counted and they were 12 and half annas, she became happy and said she will buy coconut and jaggery to make sweet as their daughter had been asking. The astrologer felt cheated as he didn't get the money as promised. Later, after dinner while sitting on pyol he said his wife he had been carrying a burden which was lifted today as the man he thought he had killed was alive. He said that when he was young he had drunk, gambled, and stabbed a man and left to die. Then flew out of his village, came here, settled and married her. But the man was alive and not died. He felt at peace and slept.

Ans 11. Night of the Scorpion is written by Nissim Ezekiel, born in Mumbai and studied in London. His father was a rationalist person. And principle of colleges too. His ~~was~~ mother was also a teacher. Thus, teaching passed in his blood.

The poem was written by Ezekiel remembering a night when his mother was stung by a scorpion, and it was heavy rainy night. The neighbours gathers, and prays and tries to find the scorpion. His father tries every methods to cure his mother. The priest also perform his rites to tame the poison.

The poem opens with a heavy rainy night and darkness, when the mother is stung by a scorpion who hides beneath a sack of rice. His mother was in a lot pain as the poison was running in her body. The neighbours came like swarm of bees and started finding the scorpion with lanterns and candles making giant scorpion shadows but couldn't find the scorpion. They prayed to god to stop the movement of scorpion, to make it stay still, so the poison won't bring much pain to the mother.

They even said it was happening due to her past sins. They continued saying maybe it was due to her misfortune, they maybe it'll cure the misfortune of her next life. They even said maybe the poison will clean her body and make her pure. It was already 10 hours and it still didn't stop raining. His mother was laying on the ground in the center and everyone had been surrounding her.

His father being a rationalist and sceptic person, performed all the curse and blessing. He even used powder, mixture, herb and hybrid to reduce the pain. He even poured a little paraffin on the bitten toe and put a match to eat. The author saw the flame feeding his mother. The priest also performed his rites to tame the poison.

After 20 hours of pain twisting and turning, the pain faded and the mother thanked the god saying she was thankful because she was the one bitten and not her children.

This poem shows a typical Indian society, the nature of the people, the superstition, the beliefs, and the selfless love of a mother.
